"Sometimes the World Seems" by Larissa Myschuk

Sometimes the world seems like it's upside-down, inside out, torn down the middle, in need of arrangement, desperate for guidance, wanting direction, lacking leadership, losing patience, turning and flipping, backwards and sideways, speeding endlessly forward, on a path of self-destruction.

And the only thing to stop it, the only thing to calm it, is the lives of the men and women that fight passionately, fall readily and die willingly.
